

The FCC should not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protections. Indiana's Telephone Privacy law has improved our time at home by reducing the number of telemarketing calls we receive. Indiana's law has been effective in lowering our telemarketing calls to only about one per month. I am happy not to be receiving calls when our kids are home alone having to deal with numerous calls, and not knowing if they are legitimate marketing or someone casing our home.
